

Organisational engagement training suitable for your team at your location.

Did you know that IAP2 Australasia offers all Certificate modules and specialised short course offerings for In-house training delivery?

Benefits of In-house Training:

- Flexible – Your choice of virtual or face-to-face delivery.
- Convenient – We can deliver face-to-face training at your nominated fit for purpose venue.
- Personalised – We can work with you to personalise aspects of the training through a pre-delivery trainer briefing to ensure a practical learning experience.
- Licensed IAP2 Australasia Trainers – We can work with you to select a suitable licensed trainer (subject to availability).
- Certification – You can work towards having a group completing the certificate program In-house through two valid pathways as a vital step towards becoming a best practice engagement organisation.
- Building capacity through team building – Build organisational engagement capacity in a team building environment and safe learning space.
- Ongoing resources and support – Use of the course materials and learnings as an ongoing reference resource to achieve key outcomes towards best practice engagement.

In 2022, IAP2 Australasia delivered over 100 In-house training courses to organisations across Australasia within various sectors.

How can we support you?

We can schedule and deliver In-house training for a minimum of 10 participants and maximum of 20 participants virtually and up to 25 face-to-face, per session.

We will assist in working with you to provide a suitable trainer. Once a date is scheduled, we will connect you with the trainer to discuss key drivers and desired outcomes for the training.

For face-to-face training, you provide a suitable venue and we will deliver the course materials. For virtual training, we will provide access to the course materials and Zoom meeting details through the Learning Management System.

In-house training is available across Australia and New Zealand in both metropolitan and regional areas. We welcome all enquiries.

In-house training is a great opportunity to undertake quality organisational training to build capacity and advance the practice of engagement.

Don't take our word for it..

"I thought the content of the course was really good, and given we had to do it over zoom the material was presented well. Our presenter took just the right approach to keeping us engaged and got through the materials well, and provided some great tools to use in the future."

"The Engagement training I received from Rob was extremely beneficial to my role. I found it was delivered also as an example of how to keep your audience engaged. I will continue to utilise the content and material provided during the training to support projects and initiatives relating to Stakeholder Engagement and internal interactions."
